

Welcome to the capital of football!

Warm-up

Still five hours left before kick-off. Already in Dortmund? Then visit the city centre!

If you arrive by train, it's best to take the south exit. The steps in front of you are the gateway to the city.

From here it's just a stone's throw to the Alter Markt. You certainly won't be bored here – it's the place to be on match day!

It's full of bars and restaurants and the renowned 'Black and Yellow' atmosphere, cold drinks and Currywurst with fries await you here.

Don't miss: Not far away, opposite the Reinoldikirche, is the Curry-Fan, Nobby Dickel's take-away Currywurst stand.

Preparation

Three and half hours to go until kick-off.

The anticipation is tangible – across the whole city! It's time for a little detour to the Kreuzviertel, Dortmund's epicenter of cool. A string of bars and bistros full of Black and Yellow fans awaits you between the two main streets, Lindemannstraße and Hohe Straße. If your provisions are running low, look for the next kiosk, or head into a bar. Cheers!

-2,5 Hours

Tension Rising

Two and a half hours left until kick-off.

Go with the flow! It doesn't matter if you head up Lindemannstraße or Hohe Straße, you'll reach your intended destination: SIGNAL IDUNA PARK. And now it's time to really soak up the atmosphere. If you can't wait any longer, come on in: welcome to Germany's temple of football!

-1,5 Hours

Let's go!

Just under one hour left until kick-off.

Soon the teams will take to the field. Take a quick glance in the direction of the world-famous Südtribüne: feel the hairs on the back of your neck stand up! Give everything you've got for the full 90 minutes - on the pitch or from the stands! And learn this phrase: Auf geht's Dortmund – kämpfen und siegen! (Come on Dortmund, fight and win!) If you're unfamiliar with our songs, check out the BVB songbook, which you can download here: bvb.de/liederbuch

WARM-DOWN

The final whistle. Come back down to earth. Breathe in the stadium air one last time, get yourself a snack and head back into town. Still got some time left? The three points just won will be toasted in the bars of the Kreuzviertel, and there's always room for a great victory celebration in Bierhaus Stade at the Alter Markt until late into the evening. If you're up for a particularly big night, many remaining fans meet at the Gänsemarkt. Apart from that: just ask one of the many friendly faces for tips on where to go!

Here's to an unforgettable day in Germany's capital of football – and see you next time! Heja BVB!

Borsigplatz

Want to visit the birthplace of Borussia Dortmund? Head to Borsigplatz! It was here that our founding fathers laid the foundation for our one-of-a-kind club - Ballspielverein Borussia 09 e.V. Dortmund - in the Zum Wildschütz restaurant. Wir sind alle am Borsigplatz geboren! (We were all born at Borsigplatz!)

Central Station

There are two options: walk through the city or head straight to the stadium! The U45 and the U46 take you directly to the 'temple'. If you have a bit more time on your hands, consider walking to the stadium. Without any stops – although though are some great things to see and do along the way – you can reach the stadium in 30-35 minutes.

Alter Markt (Old Market)

The first place many Black and Yellow fans gather before any home game. There's no lack of pre-game eating and drinking options here, and it's a great place to celebrate a victory as well. From here it takes about 15 minutes to walk to the bars and restaurants of the Kreuzviertel, or you can ride there even quicker by taking the U42 to the Möllerbrücke station.

BVB FanShop

Fancy a scarf, shirt, tracksuit or flag? In our official Fan Shops you'll be able to kit yourself out for the game with the best colours in the world!

Food & Drinks

You'll find top-notch football bars and restaurants on your way to the stadium. Anyone in Black and Yellow is welcomed warmly!
